

Devon School of Navigation

For RYA shorebased, VHF and Radar courses at all levels
Custom courses a speciality
We are close to Salcombe Harbour.

The VHF Short Range Certificate (SRC) is your key to using the marine VHF system legally, effectively and properly.

This one day course covers:

- General knowledge of radiotelephone communications.
- Detailed working knowledge of radio equipment.
- GMDSS background, status and detailed practical operation of GMDSS (DSC equipped) marine VHF equipment.
- Operational procedures and regulations for VHF radiotelephone communications.

We use computer based simulators, voice practice equipment and actual radios to give you lots of hands-on training and practice.

If you already have a VHF Authority to Operate then you can upgrade your existing certificate. We recommend that you attend the full course at our upgrade rate.

The RYA run an independent assessment programme to check on quality. Our courses have always been highly rated

The RYA Radar course is the one for you if you want to find out how radar works and how to use it to help comply with the 'collision regulations'.

It is a one day non-examined course which covers:

- Basic understanding of radar
- Radar plotting and collision avoidance
- Set controls
- Navigation techniques

We make extensive use of radar simulators to help you learn how to operate a radar set, understand the picture, plot targets and generally understand the strengths and limitations of the technology.

SRC and Radar schedules and prices

- The VHF SRC full course costs £90 per person. This price includes our course notes and a copy of the RYA's G22 booklet on marine VHF. There is some pre-course homework.
